THE NAPOLEONIC WARS 1804-1815

THE FRENCH ARMY

The French Army under Napoleon the First presents the most colourful dress of any period. We have tried to produce as many different ranks and uniforms as possible, which we feel is necessary to give a true representation. Our listing of the French Army is divided into two sections, the first being Napoleon, his Generals and the many units of the Imperial Garde, followed by the second section comprising the main French Army.

FOREIGN REGIMENTS IN FRENCH SERVICE

Foreign Regiments in Napoleon's Army played a very important part, and whilst the basic cut of the uniform was obviously French, each regiment prided itself on having a totally different uniform colour, by which they announced their identity.

This most colourful branch of French Cavalry consisted of 14 Regular Regiments, numbered from 1 to 14, between 1800-1815, of which each regiment wore a distinctive uniform colour. When ordering, please state which regimental number is required. Apart from these we also list the temporary Hussar formations, which wore different uniforms from the Regular Regiments. Unless otherwise stated, each Regiment can be represented in the following figures:

THE FRENCH REVOLUTION 1792-1804
AND THE CAMPAIGN IN EGYPT 1798-1801

Last but not least we have pleasure in presenting a French Soldier of the Revolution. This colourful figure is made famous by many paintings and has been reproduced by us faithfully, wearing all the trappings of a hastily raised National Army. The figure is wearing clogs, striped trousers and a sack holding his belongings. A spoon wedged into his hat, and long straggling hair completes the figure. We have enlarged this range with a selection of figures which bear the well-known characteristics of the French Revolutionary period.

THE NAPOLEONIC WARS 1804-1815

THE EUROPEAN ALLIES OF FRANCE

The European Allies of France were separate States ruled mainly by Napoleon's relatives. Their armies constituted a large part of the Grande Armee which invaded Russia in 1812. Their uniforms make a striking contrast against the Blue of the French.

THE GRAND DUCHY OF WARSAW

This state was created by Napoleon in 1806-07. The characteristic headdress of the Polish Armies, called "Czapkas", not only made the soldier distinctive but eventually found its way into most other Armies as the famous Lancer cap.

THE KINGDOM OF WESTPHALIA

This German state was created in 1806 by Napoleon for his brother Jerome and ceased to exist in 1813. The uniforms were consequently very similar to those of the French Army. Westphalians fought on practically every battlefield of the Napoleonic Wars.

THE NAPOLEONIC WARS 1804-1815

THE BRITISH ARMY

The British Army of this period incorporated various changes of uniform. We have tried to portray these in as many figures as possible. The same procedure as with the French Army has been adopted, the division being in three main parts; namely General Officers and Staff, Cavalry and Infantry.

BRITISH GENERAL OFFICERS AND STAFF

COLONEL OF THE STAFF, RIFLE BRIGADE

Note on British General Officers and Staff. As we cannot possibly list all British General Officers and their A.D.C.s we have only mentioned the names above to portray distinctive types of uniforms. From the types quoted, any British General Officers in full dress or in distinctive Regimental uniform of all branches of cavalry, with their full complement of aides, can be supplied.

BRITISH CAVALRY 1806-1815

The British Cavalry is listed in each distinctive branch. Apart from the ranks mentioned below, we can supply Sergeants for each Regiment, which we have not listed separately in order to save space. The groups are arranged by their uniforms.

Household Cavalry

British Household Cavalry were fighting regiments and their helmets made them quite distinctive from other Heavy Cavalry Regiments.

The Dragoons were numbered Regiment number 1 to number 6 with the exception of Dragoon Regiment number 5, which did not exist at that period (Waterloo). Our figures cover the period when helmets were worn.

Light Dragoons

The British Cavalry was numbered consecutively from number 1 to number 25 irrespective of their branches; that is why Regiments of Light Dragoons follow the before-mentioned Dragoon Regiments with the number 7 up to number 25. As further guidance we would point out that the dress of the Light Dragoons, which consisted of a tightly-laced jacket and a fur-crested helmet (sometimes known as the "Tarleton" helmet) was changed approximately 1811 to 1812 into a quite distinct jacket with buttoned-back plastron and shako. We have incorporated both types of uniform in our range.

Hussars

Approximately 1806 it was decided to follow the general fashion of other European armies of that period by exchanging the fur-crested helmet of Light Dragoons for a busby, and the additional fur-trimmed and laced jacket, thereby creating the famous Hussar. Four Regiments were singled out for this purpose and although retaining their numbers and designation of Light Dragoons they were called as follows:

7th or Queen's Own Hussars
10th or Prince of Wales' Own Hussars
15th or the King's Hussars
18th Hussars

Of each of these four regiments we supply the following:

ROYAL FOOT GUARDS

Three fighting Regiments of Royal Foot Guards were in existence at this period - 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Their dress differed little from each other except by the spacing of buttons. When in action their dress was similar to that worn by infantry regiments of the Line, their tall bearskins being reserved for Parade and full dress. Their service dress headgear was changed in 1812, along with the rest of the Army. Our figures incorporate all changes of uniform.

BRITISH INFANTRY OF THE LINE

The Line Infantry of this period underwent one major change of dress in 1812, which we have incorporated in our figures. The main branches of British Infantry are Infantry of the Line, Light Infantry, Fusiliers, Highlanders and Rifle Regiments. Each branch wore a distinctive uniform and is listed separately

GERMAN REGIMENTS FIGHTING IN AMERICA 1777-1783

German mercenaries were supplied by such small
German States as Hessen-Kassel and Brunswick, to fight with the British during the American War of Independence. They wore uniforms based on the Prussian pattern of that period.

HESSEN-KASSEL AND HESSEN-RANAU

There were very many units fighting in America and to list each unit by name would take up too much space. All these Regiments can be

THE GERMAN ARMY 1888-1914

The German Army prior to World War I consisted of the armed forces of the States of Prussia, Bavaria, Saxony, Wurttemberg, Baden, Hesse, Mecklenburg and many smaller ones. Each of these States retained their many and varied individual differences of uniform, which helped to make the pre-War German Army so colourful. As it is impossible to list all and every Regiment and branch of the various arms, please bear in mind when ordering that our figures are designed to fit every State and Contingent. For example, where we list "Infantry", or "Lancers", we mean Prussians, Bavarians, and so on.

JAPANESE SAMURAI, MOUNTED
JOCKEY MOUNTED ON RACEHORSE
PERSIAN CHARIOT WITH TWO HORSES AND OCCUPANTS

Practically all the figures in our range can be supplied mounted on horseback (at the prices shown in our list relating to mounted figures).

Figures on horseback can be made in virtually any pose desired and on a variety of horses -
a few examples being as follows:-

FIGURES IN PARADE, COMBAT, OR CASUAL ATTITUD-ES ON TROTting, STANDING, WALKING, REARING, GALLOPING, LEAPING HORSES.

FIGURES STANDING OVER DEAD HORSES, STANDING
TO HORSE'S BRIDLES, FEEDING HORSES FROM BUCKET, TOPPLING FROM THE SADDLES OF WOUNDED OR FALL-ING HORSES.

FIGURES LEADING HORSES BY THE BRIDLE REIN, OR LEADING PACK AND ARTILLERY MULES AND DONKEYS.

By using combinations of our special artillery
team components, it is possible to supply complete mounted gun teams of virtually every European army for the period of the Napoleonic
Wars, such as the ROYAL HORSE ARTILLERY,
NAPOLEONIC FRENCH GARDE HORSE ARTILLERY,
RUSSIAN AND PRUSSIAN MOUNTED ARTILLERY etc.
These components comprise the following:-

DONKEY CARRYING AMMUNITION BOXES
6-POUNDER HOWITZER, NAPOLEONIC WARS PERIOD
LIMBER FOR ABOVE
12-POUNDER FIELD GUN, NAPOLEONIC WARS PERIOD
LIMBER FOR ABOVE
ARTILLERY AMMUNITION CAISSON
GATLING GUN
TURKISH GUN, 16th CENTURY
GALLOPER GUN FOR THE PERIOD OF THE SEVEN YEARS
WAR
ARTILLERY DRAUGHT HORSE (OFF-HORSE)
MULE

Prices for these mounted artillery teams are quoted on request, as most of the components described above are entirely hand-made, and furthermore the actual number of horses employed varied from one army to another.
